

: Annual Meeting 2024
: 10-13 December
: Online
: #BES2024

Joining Instructions for Online Delegates

#BES2024 | <https://www.britishecologicalsociety.org/events/bes-annual-meeting-2024/>

Welcome to the British Ecological Society (BES) Annual Meeting 2024. This guide will help you get the most out of the conference and give you an understanding of what to expect. You can find the full programme, including abstracts, on the Whova app for which you will have already received instructions.

Table of Contents

- Overview and Presenter Guidelines..... 3
- Conference App & Platform 4
- Content..... 5
- Community..... 11
- Getting the most out of the conference..... 16
- Technical issues 18

Overview and Presenter Guidelines

Agenda and Guidelines

You can view the full agenda on the BES website or on the conference virtual event platform called Whova.

If you are an online attendee, you will be able to filter sessions by the track 'Online' so you can clearly see all sessions you can attend. There are more details on this below.

Plenary Lectures and Thematic Sessions

All questions for plenary lectures and thematic sessions will be taken via Whova. Please refer to the Content section below for information on how to ask questions.

Social Media

All attendees are encouraged to join the discussion via social media, so please use the hashtag #BES2024 to ensure that you are part of the conversation.

We understand that some people will not want their research broadcast. We respect that, so have created a 'do not share' image for people to download on our website and add to their poster talk or presentation. We hope that fellow attendees will also respect the request and refrain from sharing the talks or posters who show the image. If people do not include this image on their presentation, we will assume that they are happy for their research to be shared.

Conference App & Platform

Instructional Video

A short introductory video explaining the Whova online platform can be found via this link. It contains an overview of the following information and tips about getting the most from the site.

.....

Logging in

Before the conference week starts, you will be able to access the conference virtual event either through an app on your phone or via your desktop. You should have been sent an email from Whova with a link to the website. The email address this link is sent to must be used to log in. If you have not received the link, please check your junk mail. For the desktop version of the conference platform, you do not need to download or install any software, you only need to have access to the internet. We strongly recommend using the Chrome web browser as other browsers may not display the platform correctly.

For the mobile phone app, search for Whova in your app store and download it. Open the app and enter the email address you used to register for the conference. If the event does not show up automatically, you can search for 'British Ecological Society 2024' in the search bar, and then click 'Join'.

We recommend logging in ahead of the first live session to spend some time familiarising yourself with the platform, looking at the online presentations, and getting to know other delegates.

If you are experiencing any issues logging in, or want further information about using the platform, you can find more detailed instructions here.

.....

Landing page

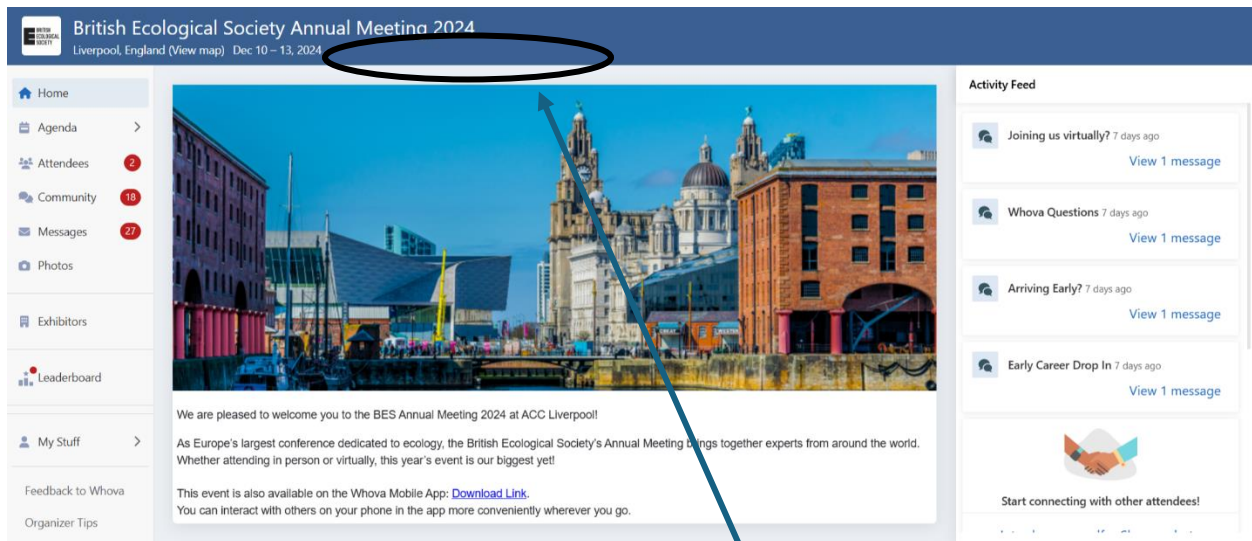

Once you have successfully logged in, your virtual conference experience begins.

The landing page is the central hub for everything you need. From here, you can navigate to the:

- Agenda

- Attendee list
- Community areas
- Your personal messages
- Other resources such as exhibitors' information

You can choose these from the list on the left of the landing page, or if you are using the conference app, these options will appear along the bottom of the screen.

Please note that if attending the virtual conference from a different time zone, you can display times in your local time zone by clicking the 'Switch to local time' button at the top of your landing page, next to the conference location and dates.

Please note that the button only appears when you are in a different time zone.

Content

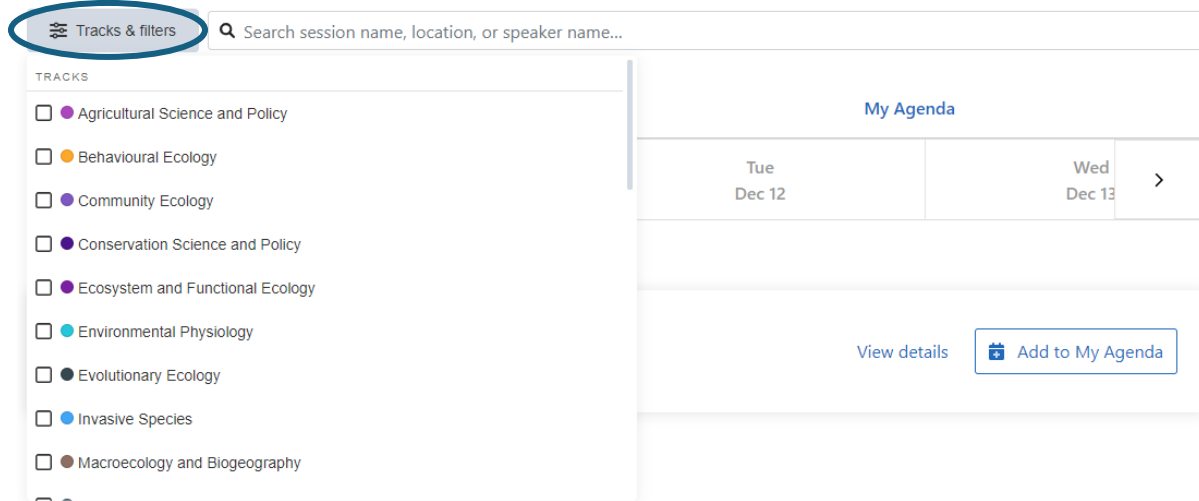

Searching Programme Content

To access all the live and on-demand talks, choose Agenda from the menu on the left, and then Sessions. This will show the full conference programme, including all the open call talks and posters. These are not live streamed, so only those attending in-person will be able to view these, but online delegates can still see the abstracts and message speakers if you are interested in their work.

You can search for content on the platform in a few ways:

- You can search through the content for each day of the conference by moving through the dates at the top of the screen
- You can add key words such as the session or speaker names in the search bar in the top right of the screen
- You can use the 'Tracks & filters' bar at the top of the screen. This allows you to filter for different groups.
- Tracks: For example, to see sessions related to Behavioural Ecology, select 'Behavioural Ecology'

- Tags: For example, to see only the online content, select 'Online'.

Plenaries & Thematic Sessions

All plenary talks and thematic sessions will be live streamed onto the conference platform and will also be recorded. When you find a plenary talk or thematic session you would like to watch, click 'View details' to find out more.

You can add it to your personal agenda by clicking 'Add to My Agenda'. You will also get the option to add it to your calendar. Along the top, you will see 'My Agenda', and you can view all your saved sessions here.

Note: on the conference platform, My Agenda will show you your agenda by day, so if you think something is missing try scrolling left and right through the conference days and it should appear under the day it is happening.

9:00 AM

Welcome and plenary sponsored by Wiley: The Georgina Mace Lecture - Nathalie Seddon
Wed Dec 11, 2024 9:00 AM - 10:00 AM
Location: Auditorium
Speaker: Nathalie Seddon
In-person Online Plenary Talks

View details Add to My Agenda

For live streamed sessions, aim to join a few minutes before the start. Any session with a green camera next to its name will be streamed. If it has already started, it will say Session is live in green. Click 'View Session' to join. A streaming screen may show up directly, with a blue 'Proceed' button, which you must click to access the stream. Otherwise, you may need to press a blue 'View live session' button to access it.

TEST
10:00 AM - 10:30 AM Session is live
REHEARSAL

View Session

To ask a question, on the right of the screen will be a menu with Session Q&A at the top. You will see at the bottom a blue 'Ask a question' button. Click this, and type in your question. The Chair of the session will then choose from these questions. You can upvote any questions you think are particularly good, but the Chair will choose from the whole selection.

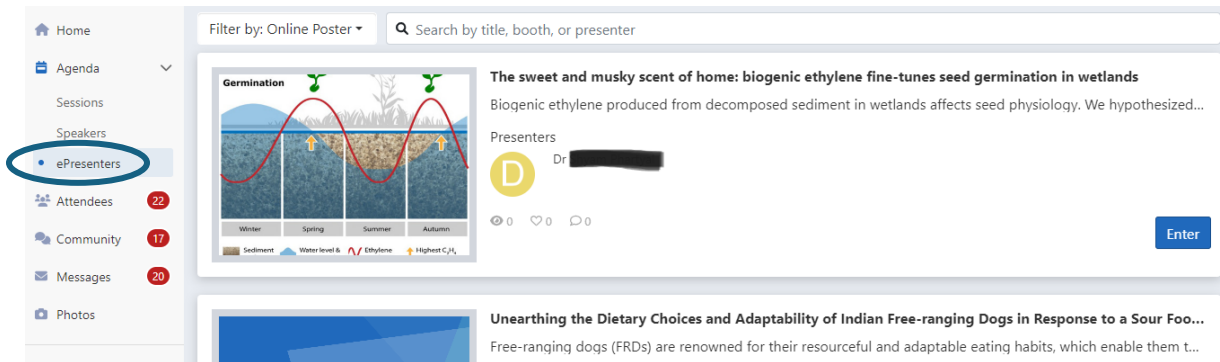

To catch up on missed sessions, head to the Agenda where you can search for it in the tracks or search bar. Click 'View details' and the recording will be ready to watch.

Plenaries & Thematic Sessions

You can access the online pre-conference early careers day in the same way as the other live content, but when you click to join you will be taken through to Zoom, rather than interacting on the conference platform. Guidance on using Zoom is available in the 'Getting the most out of your conference' section. Please note, these workshops will take questions through Zoom, not through the conference platform.

Viewing e-Presentations

In the left-hand menu, under Agenda, select ePresenters. This will bring up all the online posters and talks of the conference. At the top of the screen, you can search by presenter names or keywords, or search by category using 'Filter by' to select for posters or talks. When you want to view a presentation, click on it. This will allow you to access all of its information:

Note: If you are an ePresenter, you will need to check your presentation's chat box regularly, as you will not receive a notification when a question is asked.

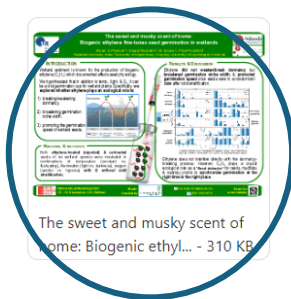

This is the title page of the poster

The sweet and musky scent of home: biogenic ethylene fine-tunes seed germination in wetlands

Biogenic ethylene produced from decomposed sediment in wetlands affects seed physiology. We hypothesized that it can be a vital germination signal for wetland plants. Specifically, we explored whether ethylene plays an ecological role in (i) breaking/weakening dormancy, (ii) broadening germination niche width, or (iii) promoting the germination speed of wetland seeds. Our results revealed that ethylene did not weaken/break dormancy but broadened germination niche width and promoted germination speed once seeds were in a nondormant state after cold-stratification. It indicates that ethylene helps to sense favourable water-saturated vs. flooded substrates, depending on the aerobic vs. hypoxic conditions needed to trigger germination. Ethylene does not interfere directly with the dormancy-breaking process in autumn-dispersed-overwintered-spring/summer-germinating seeds. However, it plays a crucial ecological role as a 'flood detector' for different wetland plant communities (reeds, mudflats, swamps) to synchronize seed germination at the right time in the right place.

PDFs

This is the actual poster. If you click on the image, it will bring the poster up in a larger

Throughout the conference, ask questions here

The screenshot shows a chat interface. At the top, there is a 'Chat' button circled in blue. Below it is a chat bubble icon. The main area of the chat is empty, with the text 'No messages yet - send them first!'. At the bottom, there is a text input field with the placeholder 'Write a reply' and a 'Send' button.

This is the online talk

Throughout the conference, you can ask questions here.

No messages yet - send them first!

Parachute science in Protected Areas from the Global South and North?

This study examined collaboration between international and local researchers in three iconic national parks: Nahuel Huapi NP (Argentina), Kruger NP (South Africa), and Kakadu NP (Australia). While the Global South parks (Nahuel Huapi; Kruger) produced more papers annually, they had a higher prevalence of parachute science (8-14%) compared to Kakadu (only 2% of papers lacking local authors). More papers from the Global South parks had collaboration

Resources

There are a number of additional resources that you can use alongside the controls mentioned above, under the section 'Resources':

- Floormap – The floormap of the venue will be here for your reference if you need it at any point throughout the conference.
- Social media – Find what is being posted with the conference hashtag, #BES2024. However, for all the latest updates, we recommend following @BritishEcolSoc on all social media.
- Whova Guides – Guides provided by Whova to help attendees and speakers to present, network and participate in the event via the app.

- Code of Conduct – The Code of Conduct will be available here and we recommend that you read through it.

Community

Your Profile

We encourage all delegates to add information to their profile. Completing your profile means people can find out more about you, and the more information you add, the more likely others will come across you (see ‘Searching Other Delegates’). To edit your profile, click on your name in the top right corner and click ‘My Profile’.

Note: If you already have information in your profile when you log in, it is because you have used Whova before and it has remembered you. Feel free to update any of the information in this section so that it is more up to date.

The image shows a user profile form with the following sections:

- Name: Includes a profile picture of a man and the name "Senthil Kumaran Raja Kumar". An "Edit" button is circled in blue.
- Affiliation: States "You currently don't have any affiliations added" and has a "+ Add affiliation" button.
- Education: States "You currently don't have any schools added" and has a "+ Add education" button.
- Interests: States "You currently don't have any interests added" and has a "+ Add interests" button circled in blue.
- Location: Has a "+ Add location" button circled in blue.

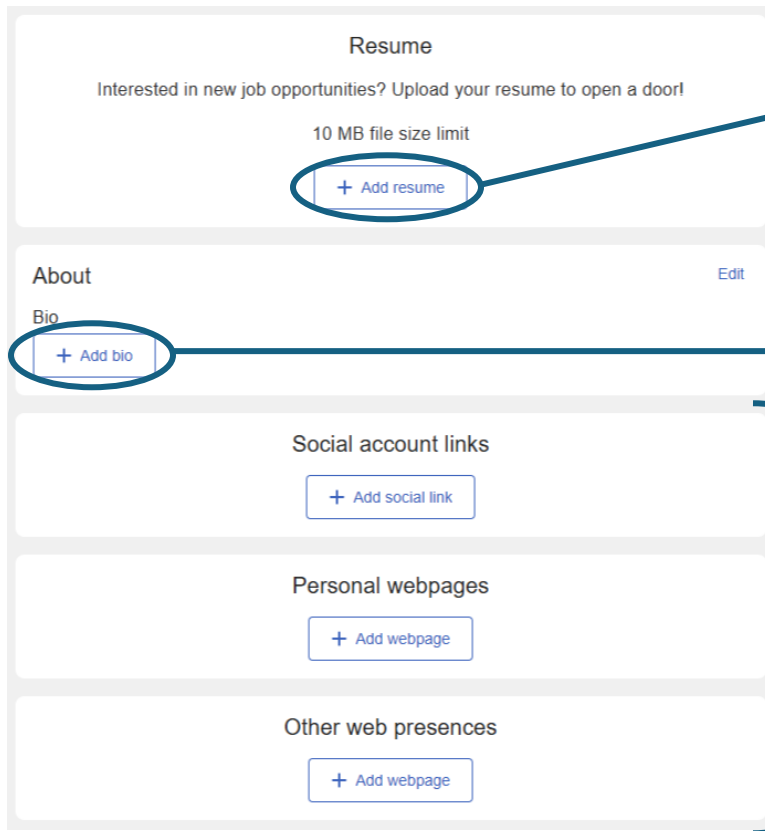

Edit

Add or edit your name & profile photo by clicking here.

Let others know about where you have worked or studied in the past.

Add your top level, key interests in ecology here so that other delegates with the same interests can find you more easily. Some common interests will already be included in a list, so look through these first before typing your

Let others know where you are currently based.

If your contract or studies are coming to an end and you're looking for a new job, why not add your CV or resume to your

Add a concise summary of your professional background, expertise, and contributions to your field of study. This can be about your educational background, qualifications, research interests, publications, and achievements.

Want to tell others a bit more about yourself? Add a bit more information here.

Searching other delegates

Once your profile is complete, you can view the profiles of other delegates. On the bar on the left of the screen, click 'Attendees'. This will then bring up a page with all the attendees of the conference, whether in person or virtual.

You can browse through the attendees here, or you can search for specific people using the search bar in the top right corner. If you find someone of interest, there are a few things you can do:

With over 1,400 delegates attending the Annual Meeting online and in person, you might want to narrow down what profiles you view. You can do this on the Attendees page via the options along the top of the screen:

- All - this will show all conference delegates, both in person and online

If you want to view or talk to someone later, you can bookmark them. This will save them in your Bookmarked section (see below).

Send them a message directly to introduce yourself.

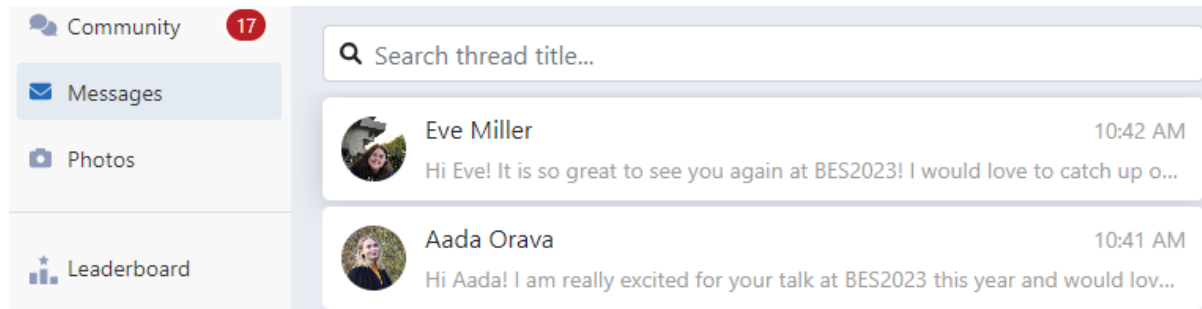

This will bring up the person's profile and will also give you the option of starting a video call.

- Recommended – this identifies other delegates you may want to speak to based on the information in your profile and theirs, so another good reason to complete your profile! You can search for people in the same place or organisation as you, or who have overlapping interests. If you are having trouble finding people with similar interests, try selecting some interests from the ones already listed.
- Bookmarked – as mentioned above, you can 'Bookmark' delegates of interest who you want to contact later, and they will be saved in this section for you.
- Categories – this will show delegates separated by their role at the conference.

Communicating with other delegates

At BES 2024 both in-person and online delegates have access to the conference platform and app, which means everyone can interact with each other.

As mentioned above, you can send other delegates a message by clicking on their profile and clicking 'Say Hi'. This will start a conversation with them in your Messages section. You can click on these boxes to send another message, or even start a video call. Please make sure the contact is aware you are going to ring them before initiating a video call.

You can also start messaging other delegates by clicking the blue 'New message' box in the messages window, and then typing the name of the person you want to message, and then clicking their name when it appears. You can set up group chats in this way, too, by continuing to add names. You can add more people to your group chat later. Enter the group message, and in the top right corner you will see these options:

To add someone else, just click 'Add person'. Want to leave a group chat? No problem, click the blue 'Info' button and it will take you to the information about that group, and at the bottom you can click the blue 'Leave' button. Alternatively, here you can just turn off the notifications for that group. If you have the notifications on, a notification will appear next to 'Messages' in your menu when you receive a new message.

Pronouns and gender-neutral language

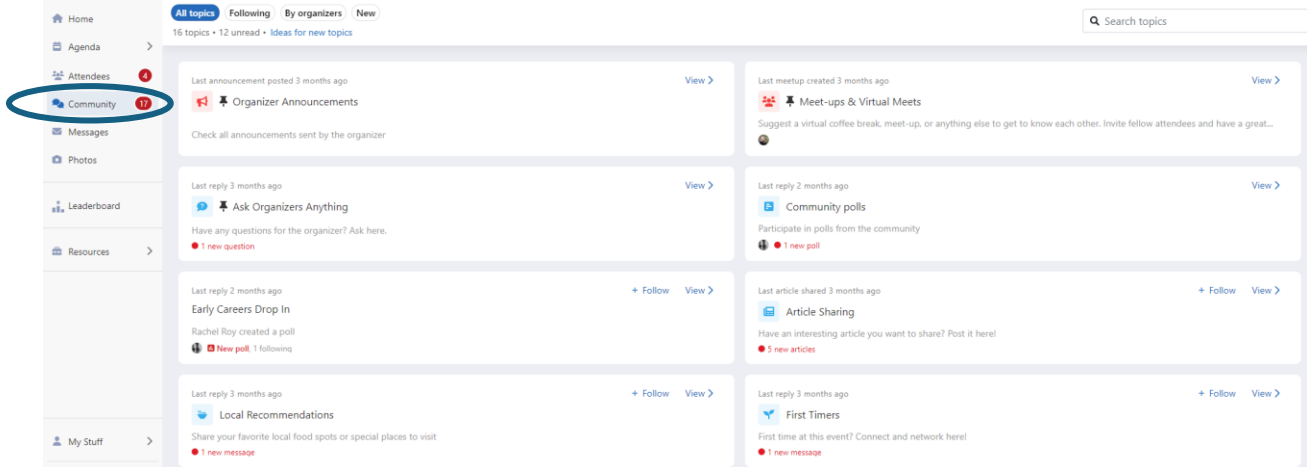

The BES ALDER Network has produced a resource on the correct use of pronouns and gender-neutral language to reduce misgendering within the ecological community, particularly during events. Please read this resource before attending the Annual Meeting.

Community chat

As well as direct messaging, you can message in one of the chat topics in the Community section: These include Meet-ups, organiser announcements and job openings:

- Meet-ups & Virtual Meets – Find out if any other delegates would be interested in arranging a call to chat.

- Organiser Announcements – Any reminders or updates will be announced by the Events Team here, so make sure to check it regularly.
- Job Openings – Looking for a job, or have a job that you want to advertise? Make sure you post it in the Job Openings channel!

Other topics may be added during the conference, so keep an eye out. If a topic is of interest to you, you can click the 'Follow' button next to the topic and can then filter topics you are following by moving to the Followed tab at the top of your screen.

.....

Getting the most out of the conference

Whether this is your first online conference, or you are now well versed in the world of Zoom, we have put together a few top tips so that you can get the most out of your online conference experience.

.....

Conference Tips

- Try and schedule in conference time – Conferences are a great way to hear new research, make new connections, and promote yourself and your work. But it's very hard to do that effectively if you're trying to work in the background as well. Turn on your out of office email so that people know you won't be able to get back to them immediately. Book time out of your calendar for talks and social events and immerse yourself in the conference. Having said that...
 - Pace yourself – Remember, much of the content will be available to view in your own time after the live week, so if you need to take a break, you can.
 - Use social media – Add your social media accounts to your profile and follow the conference hashtag #BES2024 to see what your fellow delegates are up to!
 - Come to the online networking opportunities – All work and no play is no fun at all, so try to come along to some of the networking opportunities. The Speed Networking sessions are the perfect opportunity to speak to your fellow delegates and have a bit of fun.
 - Ask away – It's never been easy to go up and talk to someone at a conference, and the idea of asking a question in front of a room full of people can be daunting. But now you can make the most of the online alternative! Make use of the chat if you want to talk to someone, and send in those questions you might normally hold back on in the Session Q&A box in the plenary and thematic sessions.
-

Looking after yourself

Conferences can be exhausting, and online ones are no exception. But looking after yourself is the number one priority, and that is both physically and mentally.

- Work in comfort – Make sure your desk and computer setup is comfortable and safe. Look for Desk Safety Assessments online for advice on how to avoid any pain or discomfort.

- Take regular breaks – Whether it’s making a cup of tea, having a short wander, or having a little stretch, make yourself step away from the screen every now and then to rest your eyes and move your body.
 - Refreshments – You’d normally be supplied with food and coffee at a conference, and that’s what keeps everyone going through the long days. Make sure you’ve stocked up on everything you need (e.g., coffee) so that you can replenish your energy!
-

Technical issues

If you experience technical issues during the conference, you can find answers to many questions in the FAQ page on Whova or in their useful guide. You can also get in touch via email at events@britishecologicalsociety.org. We have a troubleshooting page specifically for Whova linked here.